

Chaim Putterman, M.D.Professor, Medicine (Rheumatology), EinsteinProfessor, Microbiology & Immunology, EinsteinChief, Division of Rheumatology, Department of Medicine, Einstein and Montefiore Medical Center

Chaim Putterman, M.D., received his medical degree cum laude from the Technion (Haifa, Israel). After military service, he completed his residency at Hadassah University Hospital in Jerusalem and his rheumatology fellowship at Einstein. He is board certified in internal medicine and rheumatology.

The principal investigator on several research projects funded by the National Institutes of Health involving lupus and lupus nephritis, Dr. Putterman serves as a grant reviewer for both domestic and international organizations, and as a journal reviewer for more than 20 scientific publications.

He has received many honors and awards for his work, and has published more than 130 original research articles, case reports, reviews and book chapters on subjects related to his research and clinical interests in rheumatology and immunology.

Dr. Putterman is a member of the American College of Rheumatology and the American Association of Immunologists. He is currently the director of the Einstein Federation of Clinical Societies Center of Excellence and a member of the American Society for Clinical Investigation.